Life for Ashleigh Stevens is mundane, dull, ordinary - just the way she likes it.

That is until Elias comes to town, and brings with him a bitter dose of reality, proving to Ashleigh that the world around her is a lie and that the truth is much darker than anything she could have imagined.

The first in the Venom trilogy.

“Did you decide you liked someone else better?” he asked in that sly, self-assured voice of his. A chill worked its way quickly up my spine, making me shudder and tense. Elias chuckled. He whispered against my ear, “You've got good taste, Princess.”

“Good taste?” I asked with a derisive laugh, “Yeah because Matt was a first class choice, and you're practically Prince Charming, right? Ever since you started school my life has been completely weird.”

“Different, not weird,” Elias corrected, “And it's not like that's my fault, Princess. It's called coincidence. And what's so good about having a Prince Charming anyway? Some vain, arrogant, sissy guy in tights is what it takes to win you over, is it?”

“I don't know. Put on some tights and let's find out.”
